

Getting to know you and your background...

For this assignment, I would like you to write me a short letter covering the following points: past course experiences in chemistry, desired academic major and career goals, what you like to do in your spare time, etc. I will appreciate your letter as a way to gain some understanding and context about you as we set off on a semester together. I will treat your letter as confidential material.

On the subject of goals, please elaborate on your short-term goals (i.e., this semester or year) and your long-term aspirations. What can you say specifically about your current goals for yourself and how they tie in to your long-term plans?

More than a chemistry student...

Will you please include in this letter information about some aspect of your Denison life outside of your major area of study? For example, are you in a performance or play a sport? If there's something you do that's important to you, I'd like to know something about it.

There's something about a piece of paper...

OK, so it's the digital age. Despite that, I would greatly appreciate it if you will hand this assignment in, in person, on paper, in class on Wednesday, January 23. Thanks! I look forward to hearing from you.
